Course description: Explore key aspects of teaching and learning through examining your own learning processes and those of others, with the goal of applying your knowledge to enhance the learning of all students in a variety of educational setting and contexts.

For the requirements on which your grade is based and for all you do in this course, reread the title of this course. You are expected to actively investigate psychological and social issues that impact teachers, learners, schools and communities through sustained effort, hard work, and thoughtful preparation. For some, it will lead to the decision that a career as a teacher is not for them. For others, it will be the beginning of a sequence of courses that will result in teacher certification and a promising and enriching life as a teacher. Please note the following expectations:

* attend every class
* be early for class, not late
* pay attention during class (do no outside work during class)
* listen carefully and respectfully to others
* raise questions in class and think critically

Course Objectives: Stated as "Essential Questions":
1. How have I myself (i.e., the teacher candidate) learned in school, and how do I learn most effectively?
2. How do student factors (e.g., motivation, family and cultural background, temperament and learning preferences, prior knowledge and experiences) impact student learning in educational settings?
3. How do teaching practices and instructional structures impact student learning in educational settings?
4. How do other factors in the learning environment impact student learning in educational settings?
5. How may I use this knowledge as a future educational professional to inform my professional planning and decision-making so as to maximize learning of all types in all students?
Course Content: This course will include the following core content at ALL USG institutions, but different institutions and instructors may also include additional content at their discretion, to most effectively address the needs of their specific student populations.

I. Major learning theories, including Behaviorism, Information processing and neuroscience, Piagetian and Vygotksian theory, Eriksonian theory
II. Motivation theory
III. Sources and effects of student diversity in learning needs and preferences
IV. Developmental aspects of learning
V. Outside environmental influences on learners, including culture, family structure and background, home language, socio-economic status, and peers.
VI. Effects of teacher beliefs and expectations on learners, including the need to avoid bias and stereotyping
VII. Elements of effective educational environments for all learners, including teacher/student and student/student relationships and classroom management.

University Attendance Policy:
Students are expected to attend and participate in every class meeting. Instructors establish specific policies relating to absences in their courses and communicate these policies to the students through the course syllabi. Individual instructors, based upon the nature of the course, determine what effect excused and unexcused absences have in determining grades and upon students’ ability to remain enrolled in their courses. The university reserves the right to determine that excessive absences, whether justified or not, are sufficient cause for institutional withdrawal or course failure.

Course Attendance Policy: Students are expected to attend all class sessions and be punctual. Make up work will not be allowed for an unexcused absence. Students are expected to make up any class work missed if absent with a legitimate written excuse from a physician or other professional. Excessive absences (20% or more) may result in receiving a WF (Withdraw Failing) grade. During class meetings, students are expected to actively engage in critical discourse. Students are responsible for reading, fully-participating, and questioning and responding.

Required Texts: We will also use the following textbook:

Required Equipment & Materials:
Laptop computer for self-directed online study

Course Requirements: Students are expected to model the behavior of professional educators in all activities associated with Education 2130. Students are expected to attend all class meetings. Attendance will be taken in each class. In the event of an emergency, the instructors should be notified. Should an emergency arise and the student misses class, the students are responsible for all subject matter content assigned during the progress of the course. Class preparation and participation is expected. Promptness is imperative.

General Class Policies
1. Students are expected to be in class on time by 8:00 AM and remain until 10:05. If you cannot commit to this requirement during the five weeks of Summer Session II, take the course at another time.
2. It is not appropriate to bring into the classroom any distracting electronic devices. Do not use electronic devices during Monday & Wednesday classes, unless otherwise directed.
3. All written assignments are expected to be presented in proper format, as described.
Exams
There will be two exams during the progress of the course, approximately halfway through the course and at the conclusion of the course. Questions will be drawn from lecture notes, reading assignments, and classroom activities.

Class Project
Each student will be assigned a class project in educational psychology. This is a requirement of the course and is not optional. Students will be given specific activity and format directions during class.

Disruption of the Learning Environment
Behavior which disrupts the teaching-learning process during class activities will not be tolerated. While a variety of behaviors can be disruptive in a classroom setting, more serious examples include belligerent, abusive, profane, and/or threatening behavior. A student who fails to respond to reasonable faculty direction regarding classroom behavior may be dismissed from class. A student who is dismissed is entitled to due process and will be afforded such rights as soon as possible following dismissal. If found in violation, a student may be administratively withdrawn and may receive a grade of F.

A more detailed description of examples of disruptive behavior and appeal procedures is provided at:

Mid Term Progress
The last day to withdraw without academic accountability is Friday, October 4, 2013. Students pursuing this option must fill out an official withdrawal form, available in the Office of the Registrar, or withdraw on-line using the Swan by mid-term, which occurs on October 4. Instructions for withdrawing are provided at this link.

Academic Integrity:
Academic integrity is of paramount importance at Clayton State University. Students are expected to abide by the Student Code of Conduct as outlined in the Clayton State University Student Handbook, and the Basic Undergraduate Student Responsibilities. All instances of academic dishonesty will be reported to the Office of Student Life/Judicial Affairs.
